- First: Objects: "to promote friendly relations between the United States and China and to disseminate among the American and Chinese peoples, each to the other, a correct knowledge of the ideals, culture, and progress of the two nations."
- Second: The Society stands unequivocally for the undivided territorial and political sovereignty of China.
- Third: It believes that the world should recognize the right of the Chinese people to direct their own affairs without dictation or domination from the outside.
- Fourth: It believes that territory unlawfully seized and valuable concessions and natural resources wrung from China under duress, should be restored to her immediately.
- Fifth: That China should by right be allowed to make her own customs rates as one of the means towards her financial independence and economic development.
- Sixth: The China Society invites the co-operation of the moral forces of the world to aid the splendid efforts of the Chinese to forever rid their country of "the twin curses" of opium and morphine still secretly exploited in China by outsiders.
- Seventh: The Society will work for good understanding and closer contact between the merchants and business interests of the two countries so that they may co-operate to their mutual benefit.
- Eighth: The China Society is non-partisan and non-sectarian and welcomes to its membership both men and women who believe in the purposes and the spirit of the Society.
Membership Dues: Life, $50; Annual, $5; Chinese Students, (United States), $1.
